

Case Study

Airport Restroom Odour Remediation - Europe

The Background

A major European airport conducted a customer satisfaction study and found that there was a growing client dissatisfaction based primarily on the restrooms.

The Challenge

The airport contacted Prolitec which began a trial on eight restrooms, experimenting with different scents including a fresh cut grass scent, a cotton candy scent and a detergent scent.

The Solution

Prolitec's trial was a resounding success and the airport decided to change all of their previous air freshener systems in thirty eight restrooms to the Prolitec restroom hygiene system. This change also solved other logistical issues for the airport, for example, Prolitec's appliances can be installed outside of the restroom and piped in through the wall by a tube, preventing theft or damage to the units which had been an issue with the previous air freshening systems.
